Battery Orders
No 9.

Camp Barry D. C
Feby. 11. 1864.

Private Frank R. Whitney having been detected in stealing a Wallet and Money from the Pocket of Privat Hunter in the night time while said Hunter was asleep in his Quarters, and said Whitney having confessed his guilt. After mature deliberation and consultation with the Officers of this Command the Captain does Order that said Whitney shall be Punished by being placed in Irons with a log of wood attached and to wear a sign of Thief on his Person until further Orders.

No one regrets this case of larceny more than the Commander, and the infliction of this Punishment is to him a source of extreme pain and Mortification, which would have been gladly evaded by him, if under any view of the case, it could be made to appear consistent with his understanding of his duty.

A Thief is a most detestable Person and under all circumstances should be punished, but when he prowls about in the night time to prey upon his own Comrades and Countrymen as in this case, the offence is aggravated in the extreme.

The Commander sincerely pities the Offender in this Case and trusts the Offence may never be repeated, but that true Penetence and reformation may be the final result of the Offenders Wicked and Unmanly Crime.
